

NEGOTIATIONS CONTINUE

This Bulletin provides us with an opportunity to wish all our activists and members the very best for 2018 and to thank them for the amazing effort put in during the busy Christmas period.

Equally this Bulletin is important to refocus everyone on our collective objective of securing an Agreement on Pay and the Four Pillars of Security. An Agreement that not only provides decent employment, standard of living and pension security for all but changes the current workplace culture from negativity and low morale to one of genuine respect and mutual interest.

Your national negotiating team has been back in talks this week with the employer and our confidence grows that we will reach a negotiators Agreement which will address all of the issues we have campaigned on.

The negotiators recognise the tremendous support our members and activists have given the union and this continued support will be paramount if the union is to deliver a successful conclusion to this dispute. We must not be complacent and be mindful that these talks could break down at any stage and we may still find ourselves having to take action to get an Agreement over the line.

A full update on the latest talks will be provided to the Postal Executive Committee and Senior Field Officials on Tuesday 9th January which will be followed by a further field communication to Branches and Representatives.
