KEEPING UP THE PRESSURE

The CWU 89.1% and Proud Day on Tuesday 7th November was another successful day of Union activity which demonstrated members' continued support and engagement with the Union's ongoing campaign.

Hundreds of gate meetings were held up and down the Country to update members on the current dispute and to thank them for their magnificent support and the huge YES vote they returned to back the CWU's campaign for decent employment, standard of living and retirement security.

The YES vote not only reflected the depth of members' feelings but was a massive testament to the strength and solidarity of this Union at every level. The vote also provided CWU negotiators with a powerful mandate to take into further talks and the current process of mediation.

As we have said from the outset, the pressure is on Royal Mail Group to shift its position and meet our key objectives around Pay and the Four Pillars of Security. This week's latest Union activity helps us to keep up the pressure on Royal Mail Group and demonstrated loud and clear that the anger and strength of feeling shown by the original ballot result was not a flash in the pan or some emotional spasm, it is real and will be the source of ongoing industrial instability and low morale unless Royal Mail Group snap out of their denial and address it by making the right Agreement with the CWU.

Talks will continue all next week.
